Filed - February 24, 2009

Appeal from the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Arizona

Honorable James M. Marlar, Bankruptcy Judge, Presiding

Before: PAPPAS, DUNN and MONTALI, Bankruptcy Judges.

¹ Although First Magnus Financial Corporation, WNS North America, Inc., the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors and the United States Trustee were designated as appellees in appellant's notice of appeal and brief, none have appeared or filed briefs in this appeal.

² This disposition is not appropriate for publication. Although it may be cited for whatever persuasive value it may have (see Fed. R. App. P. 32.1), it has no precedential value. See 9th Cir. BAP Rule 8013-1.

1 MCA Financial Group, Ltd. ("MCA") appeals the bankruptcy
2 court's order approving its compensation for the professional 3 services it provided to the chapter 11 ³ debtor First Magnus 4 Financial Corporation ("Debtor"). Because the bankruptcy court 5 applied an incorrect legal standard in its review and disposition 6 of MCA's fee application, we VACATE the bankruptcy court's order
7 and REMAND this matter with instructions that the bankruptcy court 8 conduct a further review of that application.

10 FACTS

11 At the end of 2006, Debtor was, it alleges, one of the two 12 largest privately-held mortgage companies in the United States, 13 engaged in originating, purchasing, and selling loans secured by 14 one-to-four unit residences. Debtor had assets of approximately 15 $1.1 billion and 5,500 employees working at 335 branches 16 worldwide.

17 In 2007, the American home mortgage loan industry nearly 18 collapsed. When Debtor could not obtain the financing it needed 19 to make mortgage loans, on August 16, 2007, it terminated most of 20 its employees and ceased operations. On August 21, 2007, Debtor
21 filed a petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy
22 Code, not to reorganize, but as a vehicle to wind down operations 23 and liquidate its remaining assets.

24 On the same day that it filed its petition, Debtor submitted 25 a series of first day motions to the bankruptcy court. Among 26

27 ³ Unless otherwise specified, all references are to the 28 Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C. §§ 101-1532, and to the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, Rules 1001-9037.

1 those motions was its application for bankruptcy court approval 2 under § 327(a) to employ MCA as its financial advisor. The 3 employment application provided that, under its agreement with 4 Debtor, MCA would seek bankruptcy court approval of compensation 5 for its services under § 330(a) based upon an hourly fee schedule.
6 However, because of existing uncertainties, Debtor alleged it
7 could not at that time estimate the total cost for MCA's 8 engagement. The application disclosed, among other things, that 9 before Debtor filed the bankruptcy petition, MCA had requested and 10 received a $165,000 retainer from Debtor to apply against charges 11 for anticipated services.

12 The bankruptcy court considered Debtor's first day motions at 13 a hearing on August 29, 2007.⁴ The application to employ MCA was 14 presented by Debtor's counsel.⁵ The court expressed considerable 15 skepticism as to the need for, and value of, MCA's services to the 16 bankruptcy estate, questioning why such services could not be 17 provided by Debtor's employees or attorneys. At the end of the 18 hearing, the court stated that it would not give MCA what it 19 described as a "blanket appointment." Hr'g Tr. 123:7 (August 29, 20 2007). Instead, the bankruptcy court authorized Debtor to "just 21 employ [MCA] for 30 days from the date of the filing subject to 22 being reappointed for the following 30 days depending on us

24 ⁴ Although the entire transcript appears in the bankruptcy 25 court's docket, Appellant provided only a small snippet of that 26 transcript of this extensive hearing in its excerpts of record.
27 In order to evaluate the issues in this appeal in proper context, the Panel has taken notice of the entire transcript. In re E.R.
Fegert, Inc., 887 F.2d 955, 957 (9th Cir. 1989).

28 ⁵ MCA was not represented by counsel at this hearing, or in the bankruptcy case until October 5, 2007.

1 knowing more about what they're actually doing for the company
2 that the other existing employees aren't doing." Id. at 123:7-11.

3 Throughout this hearing, the bankruptcy court expressed 4 concern that because Debtor had not yet filed its statement of 5 financial affairs or schedules, its consideration of the various 6 motions was handicapped. In particular, the court voiced 7 frustration about Debtor's proposed operating budget submitted 8 with its petition, opining that the budget was so liberal and 9 unrealistic that the court was considering the appointment of an 10 examiner to review the financial projections and proposed 11 operations. As a result, the bankruptcy court directed Debtor to 12 submit a revised version of the budget.

13 In the original proposed budget, Debtor estimated that 14 payments to MCA for its services would amount to $75,000 per week 15 for six months. While the bankruptcy court did not specifically 16 refer at the hearing to this item as an unrealistic expense, in 17 the words of MCA, the court "mistakenly" referred to the proposed 18 payments to MCA as $75,000 per month three times at the first day 19 motions hearing.

20 The bankruptcy court next conducted a hearing on September 6, 21 2007, to review Debtor's proposed use of cash collateral.⁶ During 22 that hearing, the court specifically addressed the $75,000/month
23 vs. $75,000/week compensation proposed for MCA:

24 THE COURT: On the accrual [expenses in the proposed 25 budget], you've got the legal fees in there, it looks

26 ⁶ Neither a transcript of this hearing, nor any indication 27 that the hearing occurred, is included in Appellant's brief or 28 excerpts of record. Again, to be fair in our review, we feel compelled to take judicial notice of this transcript appearing in the bankruptcy court's docket. In re Fegert, supra.

1 like $100,000 a week - that's - that's a typo?

2 LESHAW [Debtor's atty.]: No, Your Honor, I don't think 3 that it is.

4 THE COURT: What about the $75,000 a week for MCA; is 5 that a typo?

6 LESHAW: I don't think it is, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: I thought they wanted $75,000 a month.

8 [Leshaw explains to the court that MCA expected heavy 9 professional expenses at the beginning of the case, but 10 that they would decline as the case aged.]

11 THE COURT: Well, you're using the same numbers all the 12 way through your entire budget. I mean, it's not 13 slowing down. . . . I mean, has [Debtor] taken the 14 fine pencil that I asked him last week to [professional 15 fees]? I mean, at some point, we've got to stop the 16 bleeding.

17 Hr'g Tr. 55:4-24 (September 6, 2007).

18 The following day, September 7, 2007, the bankruptcy court 19 entered an order approving MCA's employment as Debtor's financial 20 advisor for a period of 30 days. The order provides that "First 21 Magnus is authorized to retain MCA as its financial advisor . . .
22 pursuant to § 327" and that "All fees and costs incurred by MCA on 23 behalf of First Magnus Financial shall be subject to Bankruptcy
24 Court approval pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330 and 331, but for said 25 30 day period, shall not exceed $75,000.00." This highlighted 26 provision in the order was added in handwriting and initialed by 27 the bankruptcy court.

28 Debtor submitted a motion to continue the employment of MCA
29 on September 17, 2007. The motion again sought approval of MCA's 30 employment, and also asked the bankruptcy court to "eliminate any 31 pre-imposed fee cap or limitation for MCA other than the ordinary 32 bankruptcy fee approval process under 11 U.S.C. §§ 330 and 331."

1 On September 19, 2007, the bankruptcy court held a hearing on 2 the continued employment of MCA.⁷ The bankruptcy court continued
3 to question the value of MCA's services, and in particular, why 4 MCA was preparing the liquidation plan and disclosure statement 5 rather than counsel for Debtor. The court took the matter of the 6 continued employment of MCA under advisement.

7 On September 20, 2007, the bankruptcy court entered its 8 second order approving Debtor's employment of MCA "for another 30 9 days only, subject to renewal upon appropriate motion, notice, and 10 an opportunity for interested parties to be heard; the fees and 11 costs for said period shall not exceed $75,000; in all other 12 respects, this court's order of September 7, 2007, shall continue 13 in full force and effect."

14 On October 5, 2007, MCA filed its own amended motion⁸ asking 15 the bankruptcy court to reconsider the limitations it had placed 16 on its compensation. The motion represented that MCA had 17

18 ⁷ Again, the transcript of this hearing is not included in 19 Appellant's excerpts, and unfortunately, the transcript in the 20 bankruptcy court's docket has been so heavily redacted as to 21 render it unhelpful. As a result, the Panel is limited to taking 22 judicial notice of the Minute Entry for the hearing found in the 23 court's docket. That Minute Entry indicates the following: (1) 24 MCA had been retained by Debtor one week before filing the 25 bankruptcy petition; (2) Debtor and [the official Unsecured
26 Creditor's] Committee supported employment of MCA; and (3) Debtor 27 urged the court to remove the fee cap imposed on MCA's retention.

28 ⁸ On October 1, 2007, MCA filed an original motion for reconsideration. At a hearing on the following day (an event not reflected in Appellant's excerpts of record but appearing in the bankruptcy docket at no. 423), the bankruptcy court declined to consider that motion because it was signed by MCA's senior managing director, who is not an attorney. Hr'g Tr: 58:17-59:4 (October 2, 2007). MCA thereafter engaged counsel and filed this reconsideration request.

1 performed valuable services worth $106,010 in excess of the 2 $75,000 fee cap during the first 30 days of the bankruptcy case.
3 Significantly, MCA requested only that the court reconsider the 4 fee cap for the first 30 days of its work in the case, and 5 indicated that in the second 30 days, "MCA has made arrangements 6 with the Debtor to work within the $75,000 cap. . . . Should 7 MCA's retention be approved for a third 30-day period, MCA would 8 estimate its total fees would not exceed $50,000 for such period."

9 On October 17, 2007, the bankruptcy court held its next 10 hearing in this case.⁹ Neither MCA nor its counsel was present at 11 this hearing, but Debtor's attorney requested continuation of 12 MCA's employment on a continuing basis through plan confirmation.
13 The court approved the continuing employment, but subject to a cap 14 of $50,000 per month, as suggested by MCA and Debtor.

15 MCA submitted its First Interim Fee Application on November 16 7, 2007. In it, MCA sought approval and payment of $308,599 for 17 compensation, composed of $181,145 for the first 30-day period, 18 $95,590.50 for the second period, and $31,863.50 for the partial 19 10-day third period. MCA acknowledged that the amounts requested 20 for compensation exceeded the fee caps imposed by the bankruptcy 21 court in its orders for the first two months, but argued that its 22 services had been necessary and beneficial to Debtor, and that its 23 charges were reasonable.

24 The bankruptcy court scheduled a hearing on the Interim Fee 25 Applications for December 7, 2007, but because of the press of 26

27 ⁹ The Panel takes notice of this transcript, also not 28 included in the excerpts, as it appears in the bankruptcy court's docket.

1 other Debtor business, was unable to hear the parties, and 2 suggested that they submit the issues raised by their applications
3 without argument. The bankruptcy court took the Interim Fee 4 Applications, including that of MCA, under advisement.

5 On December 14, 2007, the bankruptcy court entered its Order
6 re: Various Interim Professional Fees and Costs (the "First Fee
7 Order"). In this order, the court approved reimbursement of all 8 expenses claimed by MCA ($8,309.31), but approved only $150,000 in 9 compensation, rather than the $308,599 MCA requested. The court 10 approved no fees for the third partial period, and limited the 11 fees for the first two months to the capped amounts of $75,000 per 12 month. In a special notation on the order, the court stated:
13 "This court set a cap on fees by this entity of $75,000 per month 14 for the first two months of the case. This fee arrangement has 15 not been altered by the court. MCA apparently elected to work in 16 excess of the cap. Doing so merely reduces its effective hourly 17 rates."

18 MCA filed its Second Interim and Final¹⁰ Fee Application on 19 March 28, 2008. MCA sought final approval of $481,192.00 in 20 compensation and $9,015.10 in expenses. This application included 21 the $150,000 in fees approved in the First Fee Order, plus 22 $172,593.00 in the second fee application period, plus $158,599.00
23 the court had previously not allowed under fee caps. Once again, 24 MCA argued that the services it provided were necessary and 25

26 ¹⁰ On February 28, 2008, the bankruptcy court entered its 27 order confirming Debtor's Second Amended Plan of Liquidation. The 28 Second Amended Plan proposed a liquidation of the estate supervised by a Liquidating Trustee; MCA's senior managing director, Aaron, was designated the Liquidating Trustee.

1 valuable to the estate, and that the fees it was requesting in 2 excess of the caps were reasonable.

3 The hearing concerning MCA's Final Fee Application took place 4 on April 21, 2008. After hearing from counsel for MCA, the 5 bankruptcy court indicated its intention to stand by the fee caps, 6 and it took MCA's fee request under advisement.

7 On April 28, 2008, the bankruptcy court entered its 8 Memorandum Decision re: Fees Requested by MCA Financial Group, 9 Ltd. In its decision, the court approved MCA's requested expenses 10 in full. However, with respect to compensation, the court 11 approved the following:

Period	Requested	Fee Cap	Awarded
08/21/07-09/20/07	$181,145.00	$75,000	$75,000
09/21/07-10/20/07	95,590.00	75,000	75,000
10/21/07-11/20/07	57,429.00	50,000	50,000
11/21/07-12/21/07	55,777.00	50,000	50,000
12/22/07-01/21/08	26,624.00	50,000	26,624
01/22/08-02/21/08	58,478.50	50,000	50,000
02/22/08-02/28/08	6,148.00	50,000	6,148
TOTAL	$481,192.00		$332,772

18 In its decision, the bankruptcy court indicated that it had 19 imposed fee caps concerning MCA's employment under the authority 20 granted in § 328(a). Because of this, according to the court, it 21 could only modify the terms of the MCA fee structure if, quoting 22 the Code, "such terms and conditions prove to have been 23 improvident in light of developments not capable of being 24 anticipated at the time of the fixing of such terms and 25 conditions." After reviewing case law concerning § 328(a), the 26 bankruptcy court concluded:

27 Here the fee caps were unambiguous. MCA knew what 28 limitations had been placed upon it, in a liquidating chapter 11 context, yet it chose to exceed the maximum

1 fee caps set by the court, which the court had 2 determined were reasonable in light of the customary 3 rates and the circumstances of this case. . . . Under 4 the circumstances and the record in this case, the court 5 does not feel that anything developed in the case which 6 made the original budgetary restrictions 'improvident'
7 or unforeseeable. . . . Voluntary decisions of a 8 professional to unilaterally exceed the fee caps does 9 not constitute an improvident condition which requires 10 changing the terms of the employment order.

11 On May 5, 2008, citing Rules 7052, 9023 and 9024, MCA asked 12 the court to reconsider the Final Fee Order, asserting: (1) MCA 13 had been employed under § 327, and therefore, the court's § 328
14 analysis was inappropriate; (2) even if the court limited 15 compensation, it should award the fees in excess of the caps on a 16 quantum meruit basis; (3) the court erred by imposing the fee caps 17 retroactively after MCA had spent significant time working for 18 Debtor during the first 18 days of the bankruptcy case; (4) the 19 court erred by imposing the fee caps based on a "mistaken reading" 20 of Debtor's budget that $75,000 was the proposed monthly fee 21 rather than the actual proposed fee of $75,000 per week; (5) the 22 fee caps were set on an interlocutory basis before the benefits to 23 the estate of MCA's work could be properly assessed; (6) MCA never 24 intended to be treated as a volunteer; and (7) the Final Fee Order 25 was draconian, without regard to equities or public policy.

26 After another hearing, the bankruptcy court entered its 27 Memorandum Decision re: Motion to Reconsider and its Final Fee
28 Order on June 12, 2008, addressing the issues discussed in MCA's 29 motion. The court noted that MCA's employment was not approved 30 pursuant to § 330, but was approved under § 327(a), and the fee 31 caps were imposed by authority of § 328(a). The court reiterated 32 its reasoning that because § 328(a) limited the circumstances under which modification of the terms of employment could occur, and because no "improvidence" of those terms had been shown by MCA in this case, the court would not vary the fee caps. It therefore denied MCA's request for fees in excess of the caps.

Regarding MCA's assertion that the court had based the fee caps on a misreading of Debtor's budget as allowing $75,000 to MCA per month rather than per week, the court observed that it had considered $75,000 per month too high for a liquidating debtor, and never credited the $75,000 per week suggestion because it was "even more extreme." Rejecting MCA's various arguments for payment based upon the equities, public policy and fairness, the bankruptcy court observed that MCA, under applicable law in this context, could have had no "reasonable expectation" of employment or compensation until the court so ruled.

MCA filed a timely appeal of the Final Fee Order on June 23, 2008.

JURISDICTION

The bankruptcy court had jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1334 and 157(b) (2) (A). The Panel has jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 158.

ISSUE

Whether the bankruptcy court abused its discretion in the amount of professional compensation awarded to MCA.

1 upon Debtor's initial budget as a basis for estimating MCA's 2 professional compensation.

3 Second, MCA omits any reference to the bankruptcy court's 4 comments at the September 6, 2007 hearing, where the court 5 explicitly addressed the $75,000/week vs. $75,000/month issue, 6 asking counsel for Debtor whether the amount in the budget for 7 MCA's compensation was a "typo." After being informed that it was 8 not a clerical error, the court indicated that such an amount was 9 an example of the kind of expense it had directed Debtor to "fine 10 pencil" in revising the budget to "stop the bleeding." The very 11 next day the bankruptcy court entered its order approving MCA's 12 employment for only thirty days, and capping its first month fee 13 at $75,000.

14 Contrary to MCA's argument that the fee caps imposed by the 15 bankruptcy court were based upon a factual error, the complete 16 record instead establishes that the bankruptcy court did not 17 "misread" Debtor's proposed budget in establishing the limits on 18 MCA's compensation.

19
20 II.

21 The bankruptcy court did not err when it refused to 22 approve compensation for MCA under § 503(b) (1) (A) or quantum meruit.

23 MCA argues that, even if it was a "volunteer," a 24 characterization by the bankruptcy court it disputes, the court 25 was obligated to compensate it for the fees in excess of the caps 26 pursuant to § 503(b) (1) (A) as part of the "costs and expenses of 27 preserving the estate[.]" This assertion simply ignores the case 28 law. The Panel has held that, because § 503(b) (2) specifically

1 provides for allowance of administrative expenses consisting of 2 "compensation and reimbursement awarded under section 330(a)[,]" 3 "[i]t is reasonable then, to construe Section 503(b)(2) . . . as 4 the only part of Section 503(b) under which such professionals can 5 receive compensation." McCutchen, Doyle, Brown & Emerson v.
6 Official Comm. Of Unsecured Creditors (In re Weibel), 176 B.R.
7 209, 213 (9th Cir. BAP 1994); accord In re Milwaukee Engraving
8 Co., 219 F.3d 635 (7th Cir. 2000) ("The structure of § 503(b) 9 strongly implies that professionals eligible for compensation must 10 receive it under § 503(b)(2) – which depends on authorization 11 under § 330 or § 1103(a) (and thus on approval under § 327). One 12 might as well erase § 503(b)(2) from the statute if attorneys may 13 stake their claims under § 503(b)(1)(A)"); see also In re
14 Albricht, 233 F.3d 1258 (10th Cir. 2000); Cushman & Wakefield, 15 Inc. v. Keren Ltd. P'ship (In re Keren Ltd. P'ship), 189 F.3d 86, 16 88 (2d Cir. 1999); F/S Airlease II v. Simon, 844 F.2d 99, 108-09
17 (3d Cir. 1988).

18 In a related argument, MCA contends it should be compensated
19 under the equitable doctrine of quantum meruit. This suggestion 20 fails to acknowledge the decisions by the Panel rejecting this 21 approach. See Shapiro Buchman LLP v. Gore Bros. (In re Monument 22 Auto Detail), 226 B.R. 219, 224-25 (9th Cir. BAP 1998) (quoting In 23 re Weibel, 176 B.R. 209, 212 (9th Cir. BAP 1994) ("Compensation 24 to professionals acting on behalf of the estate must be based on 25 provisions of the Code. The Code does not provide for fee awards 26 based on state law theories such as quantum meruit.")); In re 27 Shirley, 134 B.R. 940, 944 (9th Cir. BAP 1992).

28 MCA has offered no reasoned argument to depart from our prior 1 decisions. The bankruptcy court did not abuse its discretion in 2 refusing to award fees to MCA under § 503(b)(1)(A) or based upon 3 notions of "fairness and equity."

5 III.

6 The bankruptcy court erred when it determined the amount 7 of MCA's compensation under § 328(a).

8 There is one serious flaw in the bankruptcy court's analysis 9 that, we believe, requires that its order be vacated.

10 As reflected in both Debtor's application to employ MCA, and 11 in the order entered concerning that application, the bankruptcy 12 court approved Debtor's request to employ MCA pursuant to 13 § 327(a), subject to § 330 and § 331, and not under § 328(a). In 14 particular, the final line of the original retention order 15 provided that: "All fees and costs incurred by MCA on behalf of 16 First Magnus shall be subject to Bankruptcy Court approval 17 pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 330 and 331, but for said 30 day period, 18 shall not exceed $75,000.00." The subsequent retention order 19 incorporated these terms. Despite this express reference to 20 § 330, a Code provision which dictates that MCA receive 21 "reasonable compensation" for its services, the bankruptcy court 22 later decided that its options for considering MCA's final fee 23 application were constrained by the provisions of § 328(a).
24 Applying § 328(a), because nothing had occurred in the case making 25 them improvident, the bankruptcy court determined that the fee 26 caps it had previously imposed on MCA's compensation must be 27 enforced without regard to whether the fees requested by MCA were 28

1 reasonable for the services it provided to Debtor. We 2 respectfully disagree with the bankruptcy court's conclusion.

3 As noted above, Debtor sought in its application to employ 4 MCA, and the bankruptcy court unambiguously confirmed in its 5 retention order, that all compensation requested by MCA would be 6 subject to approval by the bankruptcy court pursuant to § 330.
7 Therefore, we conclude that the bankruptcy court approved MCA's 8 employment under § 327, with compensation to be considered under 9 § 330, and based on its own order, later erred when it purported 10 to bind MCA to fee caps by reliance on the provisions of § 328(a).

11 As one court recently observed, "Sections 328 and 330 12 establish a two-tiered system for judicial review and approval of 13 the terms of a professional's retention." Rizer, Kanzig, Scherer, 14 Hyland & Perretti v. Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors (In re 15 Smart World Tech., LLC), ___ F3d ___, 2009 WL 23341 *3 (2d Cir.
16 2009). For the bankruptcy court faced with approving estate 17 professional compensation, the inquiries required by these two 18 provisions of the Code "are mutually exclusive, as '[t]here is no 19 question that a bankruptcy court may not conduct a § 330 inquiry 20 into the reasonableness of the fees and their benefit to the 21 estate if the court has already approved the professional's 22 employment under § 328.'" Id., quoting Friedman Enters. v. B.U.M.
23 Int'l, Inc. (In re B.U.M. Int'l, Inc.), 229 F.3d 824, 829 (9th 24 Cir. 2000).

25 Section 330(a)(1) authorizes the bankruptcy court to award a 26 professional "reasonable compensation." In determining what 27 constitutes reasonable compensation in a case, the bankruptcy 28 court is instructed to review "the nature, the extent and the

1 value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors," 2 including the time spent by the professional, the rate of 3 compensation, and the necessity of the services. § 330(a)(3); see 4 also § 330(a)(4) (providing that a bankruptcy court shall not 5 allow compensation for duplicative services, or for those not 6 reasonably likely to benefit the estate or necessary to the 7 administration of the case.) In other words, in reviewing the 8 compensation of a professional under § 327, the bankruptcy court 9 reviews what services the professional provided, and decides, in 10 retrospect, after considering all relevant factors, whether the 11 compensation requested by the professional is reasonable. In re 12 Garcia, 335 B.R. at 723-25 (providing a detailed review of § 330 13 standards and reasonable compensation).

14 Section 328(a), in contrast, contemplates that the bankruptcy 15 court "pre-approve," at the time of retention, employment of an 16 estate professional "on any reasonable terms and conditions, 17 including a retainer, on an hourly basis, on a fixed or percentage 18 fee basis, or on a contingent fee basis." Once approved, § 328(a) 19 limits the authority of the bankruptcy court to depart from the 20 terms of the fee agreement previously approved to situations where 21 that approval "prove[s] to have been improvident in light of 22 developments not capable of being anticipated at the time of the 23 fixing of such terms and conditions."

24 Simply put, while § 330(a) requires it, § 328(a) severely 25 limits the bankruptcy court's authority to conduct an after-the-26 fact "reasonableness analysis" concerning the value of a 27 professional's services. In re B.U.M. Int'l, Inc., 229 F.3d at 28 829 (noting that "There is no question that a bankruptcy court may

1 not conduct a § 330 inquiry into the reasonableness of the fees
2 and their benefit to the estate if the court already has approved 3 the professional's employment under 11 U.S.C. § 328."); Pitrat v.
4 Reimers (In re Reimers), 972 F.2d 1127, 1128 (9th Cir. 1992); In 5 re Confections by Sandra, 83 B.R. 729 (9th Cir. BAP 1987). As can 6 be seen, §§ 328(a) and 330 reflect very different approaches to 7 court review and approval of professional compensation.
8 Correspondingly, approval of a professional's employment under the 9 terms of either § 328(a) or § 330 legally limits the application 10 of the other provision.¹¹

11 Because the approach to analyzing fee requests differs under 12 these two statutes, the Ninth Circuit has established a bright-13 line rule in its decisions requiring that bankruptcy courts review 14 professional fee requests in bankruptcy cases under § 330(a) 15 unless the retention application approved by the bankruptcy court 16 clearly and unambiguously requests pre-approval of a fee 17 arrangement under § 328(a). In The Circle K. Corp. v. Houlihan, 18 Lokey, Howard & Zukin, Inc. (In Re Circle K. Corp.), 279 F.3d 669, 19 674 (9th Cir. 2001), the court emphasized that § 328 will only 20 apply to review of a fee application when that section is 21 specified in the employment retention:

22 We hold that unless a professional's retention 23 application unambiguously specifies that it seeks

24 ¹¹ In the Panel's experience, § 328(a) is most commonly 25 invoked by a proposed professional before services are rendered to 26 provide the professional some comfort that the essential terms of 27 its fee agreement with the debtor or trustee will not later be 28 modified. Ironically, in this case, the bankruptcy court invokes § 328(a) as a limitation on MCA's fees. Neither Debtor nor MCA sought any pre-approval of their fee arrangement, both instead consenting to an "after the fact" review by the bankruptcy court of MCA's fee request for reasonableness under § 330(a).

1 approval under § 328, it is subject to review under 2 § 330. As a matter of good practice, the bankruptcy
3 court's retention order should likewise specifically 4 confirm that the retention has been approved pursuant to 5 § 328 so as to avoid any ambiguity. The absence of such 6 a specific reference in the bankruptcy court's order, 7 however, would not of itself automatically override the 8 retention application's invocation of § 328.

9 274 F.3d at 671 (emphasis added). Later in the opinion, the court 10 notes yet again:

11 In this Circuit, unless a professional is unambiguously 12 employed pursuant to § 328, its professional fees will 13 be reviewed for reasonableness under § 330. To ensure 14 that § 328 governs the review of a professional's fees, 15 a professional must invoke the section explicitly in the 16 retention application. Preferably, the retention order 17 would specify that section as well.

18 274 F.3d at 674 (emphasis added); accord Zolfo, Cooper & Co. v.
19 Sunbeam-Oster Co., Inc., 50 F.3d 253, 261-62 (3d Cir. 1995).¹²

20 In this case, in evaluating MCA's various fee requests, the 21 bankruptcy court was aware of the distinction in approaches to 22 evaluating fee requests under §§ 328 and 330, and the need to 23 avoid ambiguity in its orders regarding the applicable standard 24 for approving professional employment. See Memorandum Decision 25 re: Fees Requested by MCA Financial Group, Ltd. at 2 (referring to 26 ¹² That this is a strict rule is evidenced by the conflict in 27 approaches among the circuits. While the Ninth and Third Circuits 28 require explicit invocation of § 328(a) in the employment application, cases from the Fifth and Sixth Circuits hold that a fee application does not have to reference § 328(a) for that section to be applied. Nischwitz v. Miskovic (In re Airspect Air, Inc.), 385 F.3d 915, 920-21 (6th Cir. 2004) (describing the Ninth

Circuit's rule as a "stricter standard" than applied in the Sixth Circuit); Donaldson Lufkin & Jenrette v. Nat'l Gypsum Co. (In re
Nat'l Gypsum Co.), 123 F.3d 861 (5th Cir. 1997) (holding that § 328(a) applied even though it was not specified in the retention application and the court reserved the right to a § 330 review).
In Circle K, the Ninth Circuit expressly rejected the reasoning of the Fifth Circuit in Nat'l Gypsum. In re Circle K, 279 F.3d at 673-74.

1 case law noting that "An order that both approved a fee agreement 2 and reserved the final application to the court's review was 3 ambiguous and thus subject to a reasonableness review under § 330" 4 citing B.U.M Int'l and Circle K). While Debtor's application to 5 employ MCA does not mention § 328(a), it expressly references 6 § 330. The bankruptcy court attempted to distinguish strict 7 application of the Circle K rule in this case by observing that 8 fee caps it established concerning MCA were unambiguous.
9 Memorandum Decision re: Fees Requested by MCA Financial Group, 10 Ltd. at 3; ER at 243. We interpret this observation to mean that 11 the bankruptcy court considered its intention to approve MCA's 12 employment under § 328 unambiguous.

13 The concern for avoidance of ambiguity in the terms of 14 professional employment referenced by the court of appeals in 15 B.U.M Int'l and Circle K focused on attempts by a bankruptcy court 16 to impose conditions on a professional's employment under 17 § 328(a), while at the same time retaining the power to review the 18 professional's compensation at a later date for reasonableness 19 under § 330. These decisions did not turn on the ambiguity of the 20 conditions of employment so imposed. Therefore, that the 21 bankruptcy court made its fee caps clear and unambiguous in its 22 orders in this case misses the point of the case law.

23 The bankruptcy court did not indicate clearly in its orders
24 that MCA's fees would be subject to review under the restrictive 25 standards imposed by § 328. In this case, the employment 26 application did not specify that MCA would be employed under the 27 terms of § 328, but instead expressly provided that MCA and Debtor 28

1 had agreed that MCA would seek reasonable compensation under 2 § 330, calculated on an hourly basis.

3 Fairly read, the bankruptcy court's intent to rely upon 4 § 328(a) as a basis for imposing fee caps also cannot be discerned 5 from its retention order. That order indicated that, while 6 imposing a fee cap for the first 30 days, MCA's employment was 7 approved under § 327 with the reasonableness of proposed 8 compensation to be considered under 330.¹³ The court's subsequent 9 retention order implicitly incorporated those terms. Indeed, as 10 noted by MCA, the bankruptcy court first expressed its opinion 11 that it was constrained from considering the reasonableness of 12 MCA's fee requests by § 328(a) in its Memorandum Decision of April 13 23, 2008, issued some seven months after approving MCA's
14 employment application. To retroactively invoke the limitations 15 on review of pre-approved fee agreements under § 328(a) at this 16 late date in contravention of the terms of its original and 17 subsequent retention orders, we believe, is contrary to the theme 18 expressed by the Ninth Circuit in Circle K, requiring that, for a 19 professional's employment to be subject to § 328, the application 20 and order so provide.

21 In summary, Debtor's application sought approval from the 22 bankruptcy court to employ MCA under § 327, proposing that MCA

23 ¹³ We do not hold that the bankruptcy court erred by 24 indicating an intent to cap MCA's fees in approving its 25 employment. That the bankruptcy court advised MCA that it 26 considered $75,000, and then $50,000, per month as an appropriate 27 limitation on MCA's compensation may be an important factor in its 28 later analysis of MCA's fee application for reasonableness under § 330(a). Instead, the bankruptcy court erred by its invocation of § 328 as a limitation on MCA's fee request, when MCA's employment application, and the orders approving the application, both indicate the employment is based upon § 330.

1 receive reasonable compensation for its services. The bankruptcy
2 court, at least according to the terms of its retention order, 3 while imposing a fee cap, approved the employment of MCA under 4 § 327 subject to a reasonableness determination of compensation
5 under § 330. The bankruptcy court therefore erred when it later
6 declined to evaluate MCA's compensation under the reasonableness 7 standard of § 330, and instead applied § 328 in its analysis of 8 MCA's applications. The bankruptcy court's decision that the fee 9 caps it had previously imposed could only be disturbed if they 10 were shown to have been improvident, as provided in § 328(a), 11 represents an erroneous application of the law, and therefore, its 12 refusal to evaluate MCA's fee request under the standards 13 enunciated in § 330(a) constitutes an abuse of discretion.

14 15 CONCLUSION

16 The bankruptcy court's order is VACATED, and this matter is 17 REMANDED to the bankruptcy court to review MCA's final fee
18 application under § 330(a).¹⁴
